

Photo © Matt Manna • McManna.com

Sluggers Like Grape

According to Joe the secret to little league baseball success is ... grape popsicles.

In Texas there are at least two baseball teams named Rangers.

One is a major league baseball team named the Texas Rangers.

The other is part of the Carrollton, TX Little League.

A successful major league baseball team must be able to catch, throw, and hit. The Texas Rangers have all but three of these skills, and it shows. In the last two years, the Texas Rangers have been above .500 for a total of four days.

The Texas Rangers also lack Joe Manna. Joe is a Carrollton Little League (Coach Pitch division) Ranger.

On Saturday afternoon Joe went 3 for 4 with a home run, double, and single.

When asked about his afternoon, Joe replied, "I really liked the popsicles. Especially the grape ones!"

Sluggers Like Grape
by Matt Manna
April 26, 2008
Version • 00702B77(R02)

Maybe the Texas Rangers should make grape popsicles part of their routine. Either that or wait a few years until Joe Manna is old enough to bring his bat (and popsicles) to the big leagues.

This document available at:

<http://www.mcmanna.com/sluggerslikegrape/>

Half Brained Slogans

by Matt Manna

matt@mattmanna.com